

BLAMO CLOSING

THE “PRAY ABOUT IT” OBJECTION PLAYBOOK

The “Pray About It” Objection Playbook

Eight respectful closes for “I need to pray about it”— honoring faith, and never using it to close.

The “Pray About It” Objection Playbook

“I need to pray about it” is one of the most personal objections you will ever hear in a showroom. It involves a person’s faith—and how you respond decides whether you are a trusted advisor or just another salesperson. This objection requires extra respect. The goal is never to challenge a customer’s beliefs, but to understand whether they truly need more time or whether there’s another concern behind the statement.

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

Work one close per shift. Say the scripts out loud until they sound like you, adapt the brackets to the real customer, and deliver every line with genuine respect. Use the checklist on each page to grade yourself after every real attempt.

THE HONESTY RULE

Never use faith to close. The moment you suggest God is telling someone to buy, you have crossed a line—even if you mean well. Keep every script in this playbook about the customer’s needs, not your closing goal.

THE CORE PRINCIPLE

Honor the belief, uncover the concern. A customer who feels their faith was respected will remember you. A customer who feels their faith was used will tell everyone.

7-DAY PRACTICE PLAN

- Day 1: learn the Clarifying Close cold—it’s your best.
- Day 2: practice the Gentle Trial and the Hidden Objection Closes.
- Day 3: role-play the Peace of Mind and the Confidence Closes.
- Day 4: run the Follow-Up and the Decision Closes.
- Day 5: master the Respect Close.
- Day 6: memorize the “What to Avoid” list.
- Day 7: full role-play; grade delivery, tone, and sincerity.

The Eight Closes

01 The Clarifying Close

GOAL

Open a door to the real uncertainty behind the prayer request—respectfully.

WHEN TO USE IT

Your default response. It treats the customer’s faith as legitimate and asks a question only they can answer.

WHAT TO SAY

“I completely respect that. Let me ask you this—after you’ve prayed about it, what answer are you hoping to receive? Is there something specific you’re still unsure about that I can help clarify?”

WHY IT WORKS

“What answer are you hoping to receive?” is a remarkable question—it helps the customer sort out what they actually want while giving you the exact thing they’re unsure about. Most people will tell you.

CHECKLIST

- Deliver it slowly, with genuine respect.
- Listen for the specific uncertainty they name.
- Offer to clarify it on the spot.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Role-play the question “what answer are you hoping to receive?” until you can ask it without a hint of a sales agenda.

02 The Gentle Trial Close

GOAL

Find out whether peace after prayer would mean a yes—before the customer leaves.

WHEN TO USE IT

When the customer is engaged and you need to know if the decision is truly faith-timed or simply uncertain.

WHAT TO SAY

“I appreciate that. If you felt peace about the decision after praying, would you be comfortable moving forward with this vehicle?”

WHY IT WORKS

It frames the decision around the customer’s own peace—never your pressure—and it tells you whether the door is open or closed.

CHECKLIST

- Keep your tone soft and unhurried.
- Accept any answer without pushing.
- If yes, use the Decision Close to prepare for their return.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Practice with a teammate who says “I’ll pray about it.” Keep your response to two sentences—then stop talking.

03 The Hidden Objection Close

GOAL

Give the customer permission to name anything else that’s holding them back.

WHEN TO USE IT

When you suspect the prayer request is a polite cover for a real concern—payment, trade, timing, or the vehicle itself.

WHAT TO SAY

“I respect that completely. Just so I don’t leave anything unanswered, is there anything besides wanting to pray about it that’s holding you back?”

WHY IT WORKS

It honors the faith while opening the door for honesty. Customers who are hiding a concern usually take this opening—and now you can help.

CHECKLIST

- Ask it exactly as written—no additions.
- Go quiet and give them room to answer.
- Address whatever they name directly.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Ask the Hidden Objection question on your next faith-based objection and write down what the customer reveals.

04 The Peace of Mind Close

GOAL

Position yourself as the helper while they take the time they need.

WHEN TO USE IT

When the customer is genuinely going to pray about it. Give them something useful to think about.

WHAT TO SAY

“I believe major purchases deserve careful thought. Is there any information I can provide that would help you feel more at peace while you pray about it?”

WHY IT WORKS

You align yourself with their need for care and thought. The information you provide becomes part of their decision—and part of their trust in you.

CHECKLIST

- Offer information, not arguments.
- Put it in writing.
- Add your contact info and a follow-up offer.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Prepare one honest, written summary—numbers, warranty, ownership costs—you can hand to a customer who needs time.

05 The Confidence Close

GOAL

Reflect the customer’s own effort back at them—and surface any lingering unease.

WHEN TO USE IT

When the customer has done real work: research, a test drive, questions answered.

WHAT TO SAY

“You’ve done your research, you’ve driven the vehicle, and we’ve answered your questions. I respect your desire to pray. Is there anything about the vehicle or the deal that’s making you uneasy?”

WHY IT WORKS

It acknowledges their thoroughness and gently invites the last concern out. “Making you uneasy” is a safe way to ask about doubt.

CHECKLIST

- List their real actions—research, drive, questions.
- Ask about unease without suggesting any.
- Resolve whatever they raise.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Run the Confidence Close once this week. Notice how the customer reacts to hearing their own effort reflected back.

06 The Follow-Up Close

GOAL

Keep the door open for tomorrow—respectfully, without pressure.

WHEN TO USE IT

When the customer is leaving. It is the most respectful close in the book.

WHAT TO SAY

“I completely understand. Would it be okay if I checked in with you tomorrow after you’ve had time to pray, just in case any questions come up?”

WHY IT WORKS

It asks permission—which a faith-minded customer will appreciate—and it gives you a legitimate reason to call. “Just in case any questions come up” is service, not pressure.

CHECKLIST

- Ask permission before calling.
- Agree on a specific time.
- Call when you said you would.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Schedule one follow-up call this week exactly as the script says—permission first, specific time, then call.

07 The Decision Close

GOAL

Prepare for the customer’s return so the yes is easy.

WHEN TO USE IT

When the customer seems likely to come back—and you want them to come back to you.

WHAT TO SAY

“I admire that you don’t make decisions lightly. If, after praying, you feel this is the right decision, would you like me to have everything ready so the process is quick when you come back?”

WHY IT WORKS

It honors how they decide and turns their future yes into a plan. You’re not selling against their faith; you’re ready for the answer they come back with.

CHECKLIST

- Confirm what “ready” means—numbers, paperwork, vehicle.
- Set the follow-up time.
- Have it ready when they arrive.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Practice the Decision Close until “ready so the process is quick” sounds like a promise, not a pitch.

08 The Respect Close

GOAL

Make sure the customer leaves with everything they need—and the sense that you’re on their side.

WHEN TO USE IT

When you’re not sure they’re coming back, and when “today” was never the point.

WHAT TO SAY

“I appreciate that approach. I never want anyone to buy a vehicle unless they’re completely comfortable with their decision. Before you leave, is there anything I can do to help you make the most informed decision possible?”

WHY IT WORKS

The strongest close here may be the one that doesn’t close today. A customer who leaves knowing you put their comfort first is a customer who comes back—and tells others about you.

CHECKLIST

- Say it sincerely, without a scripted tone.
- Offer something concrete before they leave.
- Follow through on whatever you promise.

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE TODAY

Send one customer home with everything they need and a warm send-off. Follow up tomorrow—no pressure, just service.

The Lines You Never Cross

Even well-intended statements can come across as manipulative when they use a customer’s faith as a closing tool. Never say:

NEVER SAY THESE

“God wants you to have this car.”

“Maybe this is God’s plan.”

“I think your prayer has already been answered.”

WHY THESE ARE DANGEROUS

They put words in God’s mouth to make a sale. If the customer feels their faith was used on them, you lose the deal, the referral, and the dealership’s reputation—all at once. Faith is not a sales tool. It is a customer’s private decision process, and your job is to make sure they have the facts to pray over.

THE RULE

Honor the belief, never weaponize it. If a customer’s faith is part of their decision, be glad for them—and be the person who served them well while they decided.

How to Use Them

The most effective response is one that honors the customer’s beliefs while gently uncovering whether “I need to pray about it” is the real reason or a polite way of saying they still have unresolved concerns.

READ THE CUSTOMER, NOT JUST THE WORDS

- The customer prays about every decision, big or small—it’s genuine. Use the Peace of Mind Close and the Follow-Up Close.
- The customer avoids your eyes and answers in one word—a polite cover. Use the Hidden Objection Close, gently.
- The customer is engaged and asking questions, but keeps returning to “I’ll pray about it”—an unresolved concern. Use the Confidence Close.
- The customer mentions their faith naturally and comfortably—treat it with full respect and zero manipulation.

THE GROUND RULE

You are not there to talk anyone out of praying. You are there to make sure that when they pray, they have every fact, number, and answer they need to decide in peace.

Quick Reference

1. Clarifying — what answer are you hoping to receive?
2. Gentle Trial — peace after prayer = ready to move forward?
3. Hidden Objection — anything besides praying holding you back?
4. Peace of Mind — what information helps you feel at peace?
5. Confidence — anything about the deal making you uneasy?
6. Follow-Up — may I check in with you tomorrow?
7. Decision — everything ready and quick when you come back.
8. Respect — never buy unless completely comfortable.

Never say: "God wants you to have this car."
